Robinson Landscape Design

RLD is an experienced design practice with a young and dynamic team of individuals. We are dedicated to combining good environmental planning with excellent and contemporary landscape design, presented in a graphically distinctive way. The practice is led by Tom Robinson, a chartered landscape architect with over thirty years experience in the development of landscape and environmental design solutions in the UK, Europe and the Far East.

We have deliberately brought together a workforce, motivated by a shared belief in a simple design philosophy:

- We take mere areas and turn them into spaces and places;
- We do that in a way that can resolve competing functions;
- We do that by good design that comes from an understanding of our client's needs and the site's capacities;
- We do this and create value for our clients.

As specialists in the many facets of landscape architecture, we offer a distinctive, problem solving approach to every stage of a project: site appraisal; masterplanning; impact assessment; planning negotiation; design; management; and advocacy

Creative flair, enthusiasm and intellectual rigour are used to realise the potential that each site and project has to make distinctive spaces that are functional yet full of character.

At RLD we like to think of ourselves as innovative, highly professional, adaptable, diligent and dependable. We believe in what we do and we enjoy doing it. We are a people based design practice that thrives in an environment of challenge and problem solving. If you are looking for the best of contemporary design, inspired by the best examples the world over, then we have what you are looking for.

Tom Robinson
Director.
